French Navy Thought Co-Operating With British

CRASH IS EXPECTED SOON

Many Warships Held Ready to Leave For Constantinople

PARIS.—Great Britain plans to send troops into the Caucasus to prevent the spread of Bolshevism into Armenia, Turkey, Persia and Mesopotamia. It was reported Wednesday. The British request to the supreme council Tuesday to have French and Italian troops to take the place of British units in the allied forces which will preserve order in the various regions where plebiscites were ordered by the peace treaty was necessitated by their plan to send troops into the Near East, it was said.

Departure of French hospital ships from Toulon for the Black Sea almost at the same time a British squadron departed from Malta for the same destination, strengthened the belief the French navy will cooperate with the British in southern Russia in action against the Bolsheviks.

French warships also have been ordered to hold themselves in readiness to depart for Constantinople.

The supreme council held its final meeting Wednesday. Clemenceau presided at first but was succeeded by Premier Millerand. It was decided to create immediately a council of ambassadors to succeed the supreme council.

This new organization will meet permanently in Paris with power to execute the Versailles treaty and decide affairs already under discussion. Questions of principle would be referred to the heads of the interested.

Premier Lloyd George returned to London Wednesday. The Adriatic situation has taken the most serious turn in months, following the Jugo-Slav reply, well-informed observers here believed Wednesday.

The Jugo-Slav note, it was said, has postponed settlement of the Jugo-Slav-Italian dispute indefinitely. If the present attitude is maintained—and the Jugo-Slavs insist that their note represents "last ditch concessions"—observers believed it means the deadlock has been tightened again to its original tenuity.

The possibility of a break in relations between Jugo-Slavia and Italy was injected into the situation by statements of both the Jugo-Slav and Italian delegations.

Questioned concerning Premier Nitti's recent announcement that he would demand enforcement of the Pact of London if the Jugo-Slavs rejected the allied proposals, a member of the Jugo-Slav delegation said: "We will fight rather than accept the pact of London. If the Italians insist upon its fulfillment, conflicts seem certain in the Adriatic. We have gone the limit in concessions. Any shift in the 'Wilson line' would give to Italy certain districts, which are exclusively Jugo-Slavic."

"Italy wants the eastern Adriatic territory, simply as a jumping off place from which she can pounce upon Fiume. The islands of Lussin and Lissa also are solidly Jugo-Slavic. In view of Premier Nitti's offer, they would be useless to Italy from a standpoint of military strategy. Hence the question resolves. Italy, trying to impose Italian jurisdiction upon the unwilling Jugo-Slav inhabitants."

"Italy already has gobbled up thousands of Jugo-Slavs in territory ceded to her since the war. We are not going to give up $3,000 more."

To this statement, an attaché of the Italian delegation replied: "We do not see how Italy can negotiate further with the Jugo-Slavs. We already have conceded much. It will be unfortunate if the Jugo-Slavs remain obstinate."

LOWDEN APPEALS FOR 'RED' RELIEF

Opens Campaign With Speech Demanding Law and Order

CITES MEXICO AS CRITICAL

Says Conditions Are Wrought By 'Internal Government Troubles'

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. — Frank O. Lowden, governor of Illinois, arrived here today in his tour of the Mississippi valley in his race for the Republican presidential nomination. This is his native state and that added interest to his arrival. His speech last night before the Lumbermen's association won applause by its appeal for law and order. This had special interest because of the radical activities of the Non-partisan league in this and adjoining states.

The Illinois governor declared law must rule in the United States and that sound popular government is the foundation of the citizen's welfare. He pointed to Mexico as a sample of government by factional strife.

"The first principle of Americanism is orderly development under law," the governor said. "The ballot box is the ark of our covenant."

"The soviet government is an attempt to substitute rule by one class for rule by all the people. It, therefore, is an assault upon the very cornerstone of our government."

"Ours is a government of the people, by the people and for the people, and not a government of the people by one class of people, for one class of people."

"Sometimes it is Industrial Workers of the World; sometimes the One Big Union and sometimes the radical Socialist party. Whatever its name the menace to our liberties is equally great."

"If it be treason in a monarchy to lay violent hands upon the king, it is equally treason in a republic to lay violent hands upon the law, which is supreme above all and made so by the people themselves."

"Government is our greatest worldly possession, because without it the things that enrich and ennoble life could not be."

"Mexico is a land of untold wealth. The same sun shines upon her fertile fields, the same rain falls upon her soil, the same seasons change and nature works its miracles there just as here."

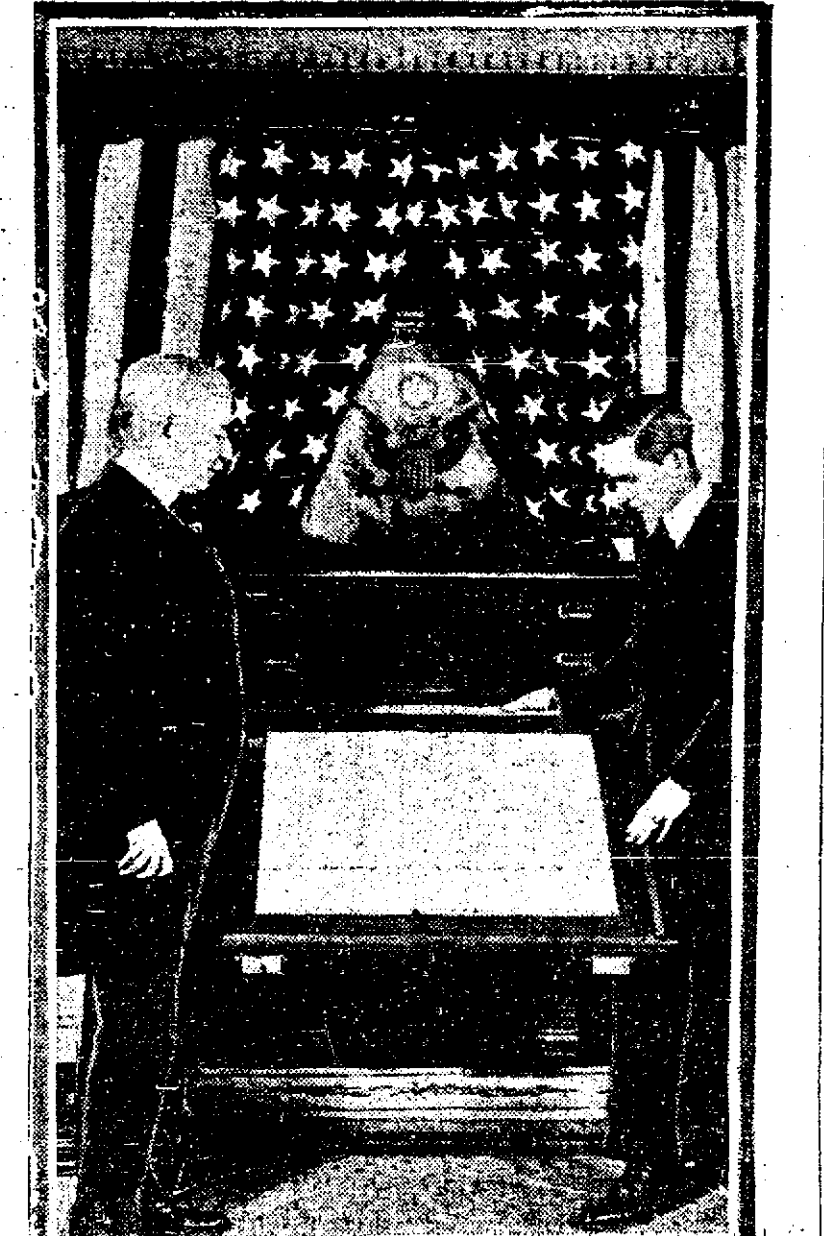

"But on one side of the invisible line which separates Mexico from the United States the fields are waste, the people starve, and want and despair are everywhere."

"On that side which rests under the protection of the American flag, the fields teem with plenty, the land becomes of greater value year by year, happy homes multiply, and all civilizing things thrive."

"We are not appreciative of the blessings which our government bestows upon us. We are not mindful enough of the high duty that rests upon us to preserve that government, its maintenance, in all its integrity, should be our first world-wide duty."

"We have the best country in the world. Its varied resources make it more independent than any other country in the world. We have a form of government, under which more people have lived free and happy than any other in all history."

SECRETARY LANSING DISPLAYS ORIGINAL OF CONSTITUTION TO COMBAT 'RED' PROPAGANDA

Exalting the co-operation of the press and motion picture industry in an effort to remove from the public mind any effects of the recent 'Red' activities, Secretary of State Lansing displayed the original parchment of the Federal Constitution in the library of the Department of State the other day. Newspaper correspondents, photographers and motion picture camera men were present.

THRESH OUT ROW

Smith and Commission Battle in State Court.

COLUMBUS — The row between Secretary of State Smith and the state civil service commission, was being threshed out in Ohio supreme court Tuesday.

Smith appointed Frederick Gauss as cashier of the automobile department.

Civil service commissioners contend that one of the three on the classified list should have been given the berth. Smith holds that a civil service examination is no test for a man handling large sums of money each year for the state.

C. H. Bryson started the fight to compel Smith to appoint from the classified list. E. W. Gearhart, of the attorney general's office, represented Smith. Timothy Hogan was counsel for the commission.

PIE COST GOES UP

Bakers Announce They Will Be 2-1-2 Cents Higher

The cost of pies has increased 2-1-2 cents each according to an official report from bakeries Wednesday.

Nine-inch pies will now cost 25 cents, an increase of 2-1-2 cents over the former price.

The eight-inch pie will cost 13 cents, an increase of three cents over the former price.

Increased cost of sugar and other ingredients is given as reason for the advance.

BELIEVE GARDNER BILL WILL PASS

Republican Leaders Are Confident After Caucus Tuesday

BOOST TEACHERS' SALARY

New Bill Would Give $250,000 Annually For Increased Pay

COLUMBUS.—Republican leaders in the legislature after a half day caucus Tuesday on the Gardner tax bill, were confident Wednesday they had enough votes to pass the measure.

"We've got enough votes now to put the Gardner bill thru the house," said Majority Floor Leader Beetham. "The purpose of the caucus Tuesday was to get the votes. We will bring it up for consideration Wednesday."

Representative Chester, of Paulding county president of the "cornstalk brigades" is still opposed to going into the interior of the Smith-J percent law for financial relief, but Beetham claims a majority of the "cornstalkers" will support the Gardner bill.

"The Gardner bill won't hurt the Smith one percent law," Beetham declared. "It will help it and make it stronger."

The legislature Wednesday had before it a plan to increase the pay of instructors and professors of state colleges and universities.

The plan which comes from the legislative committee on salaries provides that the fees collected by schools, will be turned back to them, instead of being placed in the general revenue fund of the state.

This would give the institutions $250,000 more each year for maintenance and the committee makes the suggestion that this additional amount be used to boost the pay of teaching forces.

The committee also suggested to the universities that it would be to their advantage to advance fees from students to help increase the pay of professors.

This plan is embodied in a bill introduced Tuesday by Senator Miller, of Muskingum county.

Senator Whittemore, of Summit county, late Tuesday introduced a bill which would relieve the state of the financial burden of administration of the insurance fund under the workmen's compensation law. Money for the administration would be taken out of the employers' fund.

A bill aimed at "tax dodgers" Wednesday was fathered by Representative Robbins, Ross county. It authorized county auditors to cite tax evaders and take them into court.

The branch municipal street car bill was reported out and recommended for passage late Tuesday by the cities committee of the house of representatives.

Brach has the assurance of Majority Floor Leader Beetham that when the bill is reported out of the committee on the floor Wednesday, it will be placed on the calendar for consideration.

Friends of the bill were confident Wednesday that the measure would go thru both branches of the assembly.

A Story of the East and West

JOAN READS BY FIRELIGHT

THERE is no silence so fearful, so breathless, so searching as the silence of a wild country buried five feet deep in snow. For thirty miles or so, north, south, east and west of the small, half-smothered speck of gold in Pierre Landis's cabin window, there lay, on a certain December night, this silence, bathed in moonlight. The cold was intense; below the bench where Pierre's homestead lay, there rose from the twisted, rapid river, a cloud of steam, above which the hoar-frosted tops of cottonwood trees were perfectly distinct, trunk, branch, and twig, against a sky the color of iris petals. The stars flared brilliantly, hardly dimmed by the full moon, and over the vast surface of the snow minute crystals kept up a steady shining of their own.

The range of sharp, wind-scraped mountains, uplifted fourteen thousand feet, rode across the country, northeast, southwest, dazzling in white armor, spears up to the sky, a sight, seen suddenly, to take the breath, like the crashing march of archangels militant.

In the center of this ring of silent crystal, Pierre Landis's logs shut in a little square of warm and ruddy human darkness. Joan, his wife, made the heart of this defiant space. For the one mind living in this ghostly area of night. She had put out the lamp, for Pierre, starting toward two days before, had warned her with a certain threatening sharpness not to waste oil, and she lay on the hearth, her rough head almost in the ashes, reading a book by

Bolsheviki Thought to be Preparing to Conquer Poland In Spring Drives, With a Major Demonstration In India

United States Infected With 'Lenine' Agents Who Plan Disorders Here to Keep Attention Riveted on Home Affairs, While 'Reds' Attack Smaller Countries

WASHINGTON.—A terrific spring offensive by the Bolsheviks against the Poles is expected by military experts here Wednesday.

This drive, they believe, will be to annihilate Poland as the "buffer state" between red Russia and the non-soviet nations of Europe, permitting Trotsky's hordes to advance into them.

Simultaneously with this offensive, military observers expect the Bolsheviks will stage a major demonstration against India, which will force the British to divert their troops to that area and prevent them from intervening in Europe.

In their plans, the red leaders are believed to be counting on a "tired of war" spirit in England and other allied countries, which will prevent the people from heartily supporting their governments in fighting the Bolsheviks.

GOT COLD? STAY AT HOME

Healthier Jones Issues Orders to Movie Theater Proprietors

"Men, women and children in this city having coughs or colds must remain away from picture shows," Health Commissioner Dr. A. L. Jones declared Wednesday afternoon.

The above is no longer a suggestion but is an order of the Board of Health.

"Such an order is necessary at this time Healthier Jones says in order that this city, if possible, might be spared an epidemic of influenza, which at present is visiting some of the largest cities in the country."

Picture show proprietors have been notified by Jones to permit no person having a cough or cold to enter theatres at any time.

All patrons of the various show houses in the city will be notified thru screen flashes of the announcement of the board of health and any person having a cough is requested by theatre men to remain away from the shows in order that the order may be complied with.

"As yet no cases of influenza have come to the attention of the board of health, Dr. Jones said Wednesday afternoon."

"There is a very large number of colds in the city," Jones said, and added that "unless means of preventing spread of colds are taken an influenza epidemic will sweep the city."

Every physician in the city immediately upon detection of a case of influenza in any part of the city should report the case to the Board of Health, Dr. Jones says.

Failure on part of physicians to do this, Healthier Jones says, may throw the city into an influenza epidemic similar to epidemics being faced in other cities.

The army military intelligence service estimated Wednesday that the red forces in the field on the Polish front is about 125,000 strong. But this is regarded as merely a shield or covering force. The main army of 250,000 is in the interior of soviet Russia in training. The Bolsheviks are believed to have large supplies of munitions fast over from the vast stores held by the czar regime. The small arm factories in soviet Russia are reported turning out several million rounds of ammunition daily.

Bolshevism was a live topic Wednesday with delegates to the Pan-American conference here. Methods of keeping it out of South America were unofficially discussed.

"Bolshevism is ten times worse than 'militarism,'" said Dr. Carlos Sampaio of Brazil. "I would rather have German militarism than Russian Bolshevism. In Brazil, however, the people do not respond to it and we deport them as fast as we find them."

Dr. R. C. Aldao, of Argentina, said:

"Argentina is not bothered by Bolshevism, but we ship the quantities back to their native countries just as rapidly as they show themselves."

MAYOR ASSAILS RADICALISM

Put Down Bolshevism He Tells East Siders

SOLUTION UP TO PEOPLE

Discusses Improvements and New Factory

Mayor Frank A. Burkhardt left no doubt of his stand against Bolshevism, radicalism and all other similarisms in his address before the East Side Welfare association, Tuesday night.

In congratulating the east side on the improvement already made and the growing success of that section, Mayor Burkhardt took occasion to compliment them on their loyalty and one hundred per cent Americanism in the past and urged them to pull down traitors everywhere.

"The solution of great principles are always made by the people," he stated at the close of his address. "It was so at the time of the Civil War. It will be so with the question of radicalism."

"When I saw the ashes of red flags burned before the monument of Tom Johnson last May, I resolved that any insult to our flag in the business of the people—the nearest citizen."

"Should a red flag parade start down the streets of Lima, as the city's chief executive, I shall not expect to see it, but I shall expect the nearest citizens at hand to put such parades down in the dust."

At the close of his address Mayor Burkhardt was loudly cheered.

Service Director Elmer McClain and Safety Director Fred H. Fisher, who were also guests of the association, delivered short talks.

Discussion of efforts to secure the location of the proposed new branch of the General Electric Motor company, in east Lima, was held.

J. E. Cochran, superintendent of lines and stations of the Ohio Electric, in presenting the project, spoke of the excellent railroad facilities. He declared it was possible to secure the old tire factory at the Erie and Detroit, Toledo and Ironton railroad junctions, as a site.

The matter was referred to the municipal committee of the association, consisting of S. G. Sparks, J. C. Martin and George Munis. John Ackerman, employed in the engineering department of the Gramme-Bernstein Motor Truck company, residing at 1118 east Market street, was elected secretary of the association.

Mayor Burkhardt, who was a guest of the association, told the people of the east side that it was his intention to carry out the sewer projects undertaken and to provide for safe bridges in so far as it was possible to secure every dollar that could be expended. He declared that so long as he occupied the mayor's chair, their interests would be looked after and that all they had to do, was to present their claims.

The meeting was held in the east side fire house and was attended by about one hundred and fifty enthusiastic residents of the east side.

EVANGELIST HITS SINNERS HARD

Declares Lima Lepers May Be Cured and Saved

MINGESISMS.

"Before I was converted I could cut a porter house steak off six inches back of the horns."

"I pity the wife who has to kiss a rascal before she goes to bed at night."

"The Bible will either keep you from sin or sin will keep you from the Bible."

"There is no use fussing about the boys shooting craps in the alleys until you stop the women gambling for silk hose on the boulevards."

"The business men of this town wouldn't know some of the things these church members unless they should dig up an old musty church record."

"Some old devils who are cursing out the evangelist run like whips when he comes around the corner."

"The idea some of you have of heaven would be to walk down the golden streets into a saloon."

The lepers of Lima can all be cleansed and their souls saved if they obey God's word, if they do not they must go on through their lives unclean and into eternity lost, declared Evangelist Wm. J. Minges at the South Side Church of Christ revival last night.

Building his sermon around the Biblical story of Naaman, whom he styled the "Sinner General of the Assyrian army," the evangelist portrayed with the skill of an actor how Naaman was healed of his leprosy and argued that he was cleansed by obeying God, so can all unclean of today be cleansed by doing God's will and God's will he said is that everyone accept Christ.

It was a remarkable appeal. One that regular attendants at the revival said afterwards it had not been equalled in any of his previous sermons and at the invitation a number came forward for membership.

The entire program last night was of unusual interest. The music by both choir and special singers could hardly be surpassed. Rev. Franklin baptized twenty of Sunday's converts in the opening. Tonight will be the School night. Tomorrow afternoon at 3:45 Mrs. Minges will speak to women and girls.

CABLE SAYS HE'S THROWN DOWN

Declares Police Against Him in Trial of Woman

Irene Allen, 30, negress, proprietor of the Ohio restaurant, 117 East Wayne street, was acquitted of the charge of keeping a disorderly place in common pleas court Wednesday.

Prosecuting Attorney John L. Cable had rested his side of the case, when Judge William Klinger took the case from the jury and directed the verdict. He held there was not sufficient evidence to allow the case to reach the jury.

Webb Harrison, negro patrolman, testified that Irene Allen, who is with the Allen woman here, was also with her in a disorderly place in Toledo.

No other patrolmen were called to testify. The Allen woman had subpoenaed to testify on her side Charles McCov, Frank Kinzer, Webb Harrison, Charles Billstein and Joe Reed, all patrolmen, and Chief of Police T. J. Huston.

Hugh Patton, for many years a detective in Lima, testified for the state, as did Sheriff Baxter and Deputy Sheriff Clarence Fraunfelter.

"It was this side of the police she was indicted," Cable said Wednesday. "Yet they were all against me in the trial."

The Allen woman was stylishly and expensively dressed when she appeared in court.

Mayor Frank A. Burkhardt heard the testimony offered in the case.

Mayor Frank A. Burkhardt is in a league with Dan Cupid.

At his frequent speeches during National Thrift week, Mayor Burkhardt has not only urged women, to assist their husbands to purchase a home, but he has also urged young people to marry.

"I can't see any thrift unless some of these young people around the city marry and begin early to save for a golden old age," Mayor Burkhardt told his auditors at places where he spoke in interest of the campaign.

Mayor Burkhardt is a strong advocate of young people becoming settled early in life. He himself married young and has a large family of children.

KLINGER UPHELD IN GEORGE CASE

Affirm Lower Court Conviction
in Shooting Charge.

The court of appeals Tuesday affirmed the judgment of the lower court in the case of John George, south side grocer, for shooting with intent to kill Stephen Bogdan, neighboring grocer.

In lower court George was found guilty and was sentenced to the penitentiary by Judge William Klinger. The case was appealed. The shooting occurred one Sunday morning early in January 1918, at George's store on Second street.

Trouble over delivery of a tub of butter, intended for George's grocery and taken to the neighboring store, testimony developed was the cause of the trouble.

The court of appeals, in their opinion, said: "The shooting with a high powered pistol by George was admitted. His claim of self-defense entirely failed, as disclosed by the record, and from a careful study of the same, there is left no reasonable doubt of his guilt, as charged in the indictment."

LABOR FORUM IS APPROVED

Organizations of City Are Boosting New Idea

The proposed establishment of a labor forum under the direction of the Lima Trades and Labor Council, is meeting with many expressions of approval, according to those who are active in promoting the idea. Several organizations which have met during the past week, have given the movement a boost by advising their members to attend. Chairman W. S. Barringer, of the committee having charge, said Tuesday: "The meetings starting January 27th, will, I believe, prove of more interest to the people of Lima than anything of like nature that has ever been attempted, as they will provide for an open discussion of many subjects which are of interest to a large number of people. Anyone having opinions of his own on any topic announced, will be welcome to come before the gathering and give us the benefit of his knowledge. We are trying to provide what we believe will prove a benefit to the public in general, and all are invited."

The first program, soon to be announced, will provide information and discussion on the Cummins bill, now before congress, and which is being opposed by organized labor. A special invitation has been given to railroad workers to attend this meeting, and a large representation is expected.

A Story of the East and West

COPYRIGHTED BY KATHERINE N. BURT

He shivered and shook his head. "No, here you stay with yer father an' grows up a good gal. There ain't no goin' to be no man in yer life, Joan."

But youth was stronger than the man's half-crazy will, and when she was seventeen, Joan ran away. She found her way easily enough to the town, for she was wise in the tracks of a wild country, and John's trail townwards, though so rarely used, was to her eyes plain enough; and very coolly she walked into the hotel, past the group of loungers around the stove, and asked at the desk, where Mrs. Upper sat, if she could get a job. Mrs. Upper and the loungers stared, for there were few women in this frontier country and those were well known. This great, strong girl, heavily graceful in her heavily awkward clothes, her head and shoulders like a man, her face and throat purely classic, her eyes gray and wide and as secret in expression as an untamed beast's—no one had ever seen the like of her before.

"What's yer name?" asked Mrs. Upper suspiciously. It was Morman Day in the town, there were celebrations and her house was full; she needed extra hands, but where this wild creature was concerned she was doubtful.

"Joan, I'm John Carver's daughter," answered the girl. At once comprehension dawned; heads were nodded, then craned for a better look. But they were the whole country even, had heard of John Carver's imprisoned daughter. Sober and drunk had both boasted of her and of how there was to be "no man" in her life. It was like dancing in ripe fruit above the mouth of hungry boys to make such a boast in such a land. But they were not. It was a country of lazy, slow-thinking, slow-moving and slow-talking adventurers—you will notice this ponderous, inevitable quality of rolling stones—and though men talked

PIERRE LAYS HIS HAND ON A HEART

MAUD UPPER was the first girl of her own age that Joan had ever seen. Joan knew this and enjoyed her ascendancy over an untamed creature twice her size. There was the crack of a lion-famer's whip in the tone of her instructions. That was after a day or two. At first Maud had been horribly afraid of Joan. "A wild thing like her, livin' off there in the hills with that man, why, ma, there's no tellin' what she might be doin' to me."

"She won't hurt ye," laughed Mrs. Upper, who had lived in the wilds herself, having been a frontiersman's wife before the days even of this frontier town and having married the hotelkeeper as a second venture. She knew that civilization—this rude place being civilization to Joan—would cow the girl and she knew that Maud's self-assertive buoyancy would frighten the soul of her. Maud was large-lipped, high-bosomed, with a small, round waist much compressed. She carried her head, with its waved brown hair, very high, and shot blue glances down along a short, broad nose. Her mouth was thin and determined, her color high. She had a curious shallow, weak voice that sounded breathless. She taught Joan impatiently and laughed loudly, but not unkindly at her ways.

"See, she's awkward, ain't she?" she would say to the men; "trail like a bull moose!" The men grinned, but their eyes followed Joan's movements. As a matter of fact, she was not awkward. Through her clumsy clothes, the heaviness of her early youth, in spite of all the fetters of her ignorance, her wonderful long bones and her wonderful strength asserted themselves. And she never hurried. At first this apparent sluggishness infuriated Maud. "Get a gait on ye, Joan Carver!" she would scream above the din of the rough meals, but soon she found that Joan's slow movements accomplished a tremendous amount of work in an amazingly short time. There was no puff in the girl's activity. She poured out her strength as a python pours his, noiseless, evenly, steadily, no haste, no waste. And the men's eyes brooded upon her.

If Joan had stayed long at Mrs. Upper's she would have begun inevitably to model herself on Maud, who was in her eyes, a successful thing of beauty. But, just a week after her arrival, there came to the inn Pierre Landis and for Joan began the strange and terrible history of with humor not too fine of "travelin' up Lone River for John's gal," not a man had got there. Perhaps the men knew John Carver for a coward, that most dangerous animal to meet in his own lair.

Now here stood the "gal," the mysterious secret goal of desire, a splendid creature, virginal, savage, as certainly designed for man as Eve. The men's eyes fastened upon her, moved and dropped.

"Your father sent you down here fer a job?" asked Mrs. Upper incredulously.

"No, I come." Joan's grave gaze was unchanging. "I'm tired of it up there. I ain't a-koan' back, I'm most eighteen now an' I kinder want a change."

She had not meant to be funny, but a gust of laughter rattled the room. She shrank back. It was more terrifying to her than any cruelty she had fancied meeting her in the town. These were the men her father had forbidden, these loud-laughing, crinkled faces. She had turned to brave them, a great surge of color in her brow.

"Don't mind the boys, dear," spoke Mrs. Upper. "They will laugh, joke or none. We ain't none of us blamin' you. It's a wonder you ain't run off long afore now. I can give you a job an' welcome, but you'll be green an' unhandy. Well, sid, we kin learn ye. You kin turn yer hand to chamber-work an' mebbe help at the table. Maud will show you. But, Joan, what will dad do to you? He'll be takin' after you hot-foot, I reckon, he fer kettin' you back home as soon as he can."

Joan did not change her look. "I'll not be goin' back with him," she said.

Her slow, deep voice, chest notes of a musical vibration, stirred the room. The men were here and with said so. A sudden warmth enveloped her from heart to foot. She followed Mrs. Upper to the initiation in her service, clothed for the first time in human sympathies.

In the lives of most women, of the vast majority, the clatter and clash of housewifery prelude and postlude the spring song of their years. And the rattle of dishes of busy knives and forks, the quick tapping of Maud's attendant feet, the sound of young and ravenous jaws at work; these sounds were in Joan's bewildered ears, and the sights which they accompanied in her bewildered eyes, just before she heard Pierre's voice, just before she saw his face.

It was dinner hour at the hotel, an hour most dreadful to Joan because of the hurry, the strangeness, and the crowd, because of the responsibility of her work, but chiefly because at that hour she expected the appearance of her father. Her eyes were often on the door. It opened to admit the young men, the riders and ranchers who hung up their hats, swayed with a little jingle of spurs to their chairs, clean-faced, clean-handed, wet-haired, murmuring low-voiced courtesies. "Pass me the gravy, please." "I wouldn't be carin' fer any, thank you."—and lifting to the faces of waiting girls now and again their strange, young, hooding eyes, bold, laughing, and afraid, hungry, pathetic, arrogant as the eyes of young men are, tameless and untamable but full of the pathos of the untamed. Joan's heart shook a little under their looks, but when Pierre lifted his eyes to her, her heart stood still. She had not seen them follow her progress around the room. He had come in late, and finding no place at the long, central table sat apart at a smaller one under a high, uncurtained window. By the time she met his eyes they were charged with light; smoky-blue eyes they were, the iris heavily ringed with black, the pupils dilated a little. For the first time it occurred to Joan, looking down with a still heart into his eyes, that a man might be beautiful. The blood came up from her heart to her face. Her eyes struggled away from his.

"What's yer name, gal?" murmured Pierre.

"Joan Carver."

"You run away from home?" He too had heard of her.

"Yes."

"Will your father be takin' you back?"

"I won't be goin' with him."

She was about to pass on. Pierre cast a swift look about the table, bent heads and busy hands, eyes cast down, ears, he knew, alert. It was a land of few women and of many men. He must leave in the morning early and for months he would not be back. He put out a long hard hand, caught Joan's wrist and gave it a queer, urgent shake, the gesture of an impatient and beseeching child.

"Will you be comin' home with me, gal?" asked Pierre hurriedly.

She looked at him, her lips apart, and she shook her head.

Maud's voice screamed at her from the kitchen door. Pierre let her go. She went on very white.

She did not sleep at all that night. Her father's face, Pierre's face, looked at her. In the morning Pierre would be gone. She heard Maud say that the "queer Landis feller" would be makin' tracks back to that ranch of his across the river. Yes, he would be gone. She might have been going with him. She felt the urgent pressure of his hand on her arm in her heart. It shook her with such a longing for love, for all the unknown largesse of love, that she cried. The next morning, pale, she came down and went about her work. Pierre was not at breakfast, and she felt a sinking of heart, though she had not known that she had built upon seeing him again. Then, as she stepped out at the back to empty a bucket, there he was!

Not even the beauty of dawn could lend mystery to the hideous, frontier yard, untidy as the yards of frontier towns invariably are, to the board fence, to the rampled half-acre of dirt, known as "The Square," and to the ugly frame buildings straggled about it; but it could and did give an unearthly look of blessedness to the bare, gray-brown buttes that ringed the town and a glory to the sky, while upon Pierre, waiting at his pony's head, he shot a magnificent and tender light. He was dressed in his cowboy's best, a white silk handkerchief knotted under his chin, leather "chaps," bright spurs, a sombrero on his head. His face was grave, excited, wild. At sight of Joan, he moved forward, the pony trailing after him, the full length of his reins and stopping before her. Pierre took off the sombrero, slowly stripped the gambut from his right hand, and, pressing both hat and glove against his hip with the left hand, held out the free, clean palm to Joan.

"Joan-lee," said he, "unless you'll be comin' with me after all?" Joan felt again that rush of fire to her brows. She took his hand and her fingers closed around it like the frightened, lonely fingers of a little girl. She came near to him and looked up.

"I'll be comin' with you, Pierre," she said, just above her breath.

He shot up a full inch, stiffened, searched her with smouldering eyes.

then held her hand against him.

"You'll not be sorry, Joan Carver," said he gently and put her away from him. Then, unsmiling, he bade her go in and get her belongings while he got a horse and told his news to Mrs. Upper.

That ride was dreamlike to Joan. Pierre put her in her saddle and she rode after him across the Square and along a road flanked by the ugly houses of the town.

"Where are we goin'?" she asked him timidly.

He stopped at that, turned, and resting his hand on the cradle of his saddle, smiled at her for the first time.

"Don't worry you savvy the answer to that question, Joan?"

She shook her head.

The smile faded. "We're goin' to be married," said he sternly, and they rode on.

They were married by the justice, a pleasant, silent fellow, who with Western courtesy, asked no more questions than were absolutely needful, and in fifteen minutes Joan mounted her horse again, a ring on the third finger of her left hand.

"Now," said Pierre, standing at her stirrup, his shining smoke-blue eyes lifted to her, his hand on her boot, "you'll be wanting some things—some clothes."

"No," said Joan. "Maud went with me an' helped me buy things with my pay just yesterday. I won't be needin' anything."

"All right," said he. "We're off, then!" And he flung himself with a sudden wild, boyish "Whoop!" on his pony, gave a clip to Joan's horse and his own, and away they galloped, a pair of young, wild things, out from the town through a straggling street to where the road boldly stretched itself toward a great land of sagebrush, of buttes humping their backs against the brilliant sky.

Down the valley they rode, trotting, walking, galloping, till, turning westward, they mounted a sharp slope and came up above the plain. Below in the heart of the long, narrow valley, the river coiled and wandered, divided and came together again into a swift stream, amongst aspen is-

Convinced Beyond Shadow of Doubt

Business Representative of Carpenters Union in Montgomery and Green Counties, Ohio, States Dreco Is a Wonderful Medicine.

"I am convinced beyond the shadow of a doubt that Dreco is the greatest medicine ever offered the public," is the statement of Mr. A. T. White, of 312 Parkview Ave., Dayton, O. Mr. White holds the responsible place of "Business Representative of Carpenters Union No. 104," which covers Montgomery and Green Counties.

"Two years ago I had an accident and lost my right eye, being in the hospital and under specialists' care for five months. This trying ordeal completely shattered my nerves, and my vitality was at low ebb, getting weak and debilitated every day. It seemed that all my friends felt called upon to tell me what good medicine Dreco was, and what it would do for me. I admit I could see that it had done them good, so I started taking Dreco also, and have finished taking the second bottle, and my troubles are about all over with. I have a fine appetite and digest all I eat. It has given me great comfort in the early part of the night, so that I sleep well. I see a wonderful improvement in my stomach, liver, kidneys, bladder and bowels, and my nerves are even more quiet than before my accident. Dreco took hold of me in a business like manner and produced results."

As a strengthener and builder up of the system there is nothing equal Dreco, the herbal stomach remedy. The wonderful preparation which has taken the country by storm is made from juices and essences of medicinal plants gathered from many parts of the world combined with great skill into the best remedy known for all ailments of the stomach, liver, kidneys and blood. It purifies the blood, aids digestion, strengthens weak nerves and revitalizes the whole body.

All good druggists sell Dreco and it is highly recommended in Lima by Baldwin's Central Drug Store, corner Main and High Streets.

lands and willow swamps. Beyond this strange, lonely river-bed, the cottonwoods began, and, above them, the pine forests massed themselves and strode up the foothills of the gigantic range, that range of iron rocks, sharp, thin, and brittle where they scraped the sky.

At the top of the hill, Pierre put out his hand and pulled Joan's rein, drawing her to a stop beside him.

"Over yonder's my ranch," said he.

Joan looked. There was not a sign of house or clearing, but she followed his gesture and nodded. "Under the mountains?" she said.

"At the foot of Thunder Canon. You can see a gap in the pines. There's a waterfall just above—that white streak. Now you've got it. Where you come from's to the south, away yonder."

Joan would not turn her head. "Yes," said she, "I know."

Suddenly tears rushed to her eyes. She had a moment of unbearable longing and regret. Pierre said nothing; he was not watching her. "Come on," said he, "or your father will be takin' after us." They rode at a gallop down the hill.

The Most Welcome Tire That Ever Came to Market

Men Who Appreciate Superlative Values Prefer The Brunswick

In every great tire factory, the chief question is: "How much can we give for the money?" And the product depends on the policy adopted.

Every man who has become acquainted with Brunswick Tires knows that Brunswick standards are again evident. This famous concern—noted as a leader in every line it entered since 1845—has once more proved that its policy is right.

A perfect tire is simply a matter of knowledge and standards and skill. No secrets nor patents prevent making an ideal tire.

But standards come first. For in tire making there is vast room for skimping, for subtle economies, for hidden shortcomings. Makers without the highest standards don't build high-grade tires.

The Brunswick organization of tire makers includes a brilliant staff of technical experts. Not a man among them has spent less than 20 years in handling rubber.

Each is a master of his craft. And the new ideas they bring to the attention of Brunswick directors receive sincere consideration.

Every proved betterment is adopted unanimously.

The Brunswick Tire is a combination of acknowledged features—plus Brunswick standards of manufacture.

The result is a super-tire, the like of which you have never known before. The kind of a tire you will gladly join in welcoming.

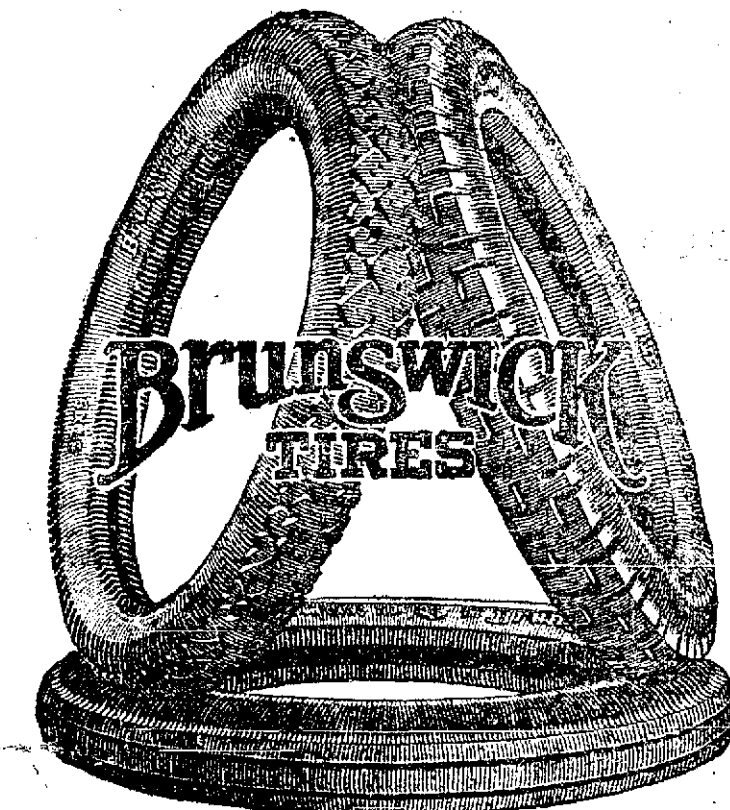

Yet Brunswicks cost no more than like-type tires.

Try ONE Brunswick. We promise a surprise. And we feel certain that you will want ALL Brunswicks.

Then good tires will have a new meaning to you.

TELLS DYSPEPTICS WHAT TO EAT

Avoid Indigestion, Sour Acid Stomach, Heartburn, Gas on Stomach, etc.

Indigestion and practically all forms of stomach trouble, say medical authorities, are due nine times out of ten to an excess of hydrochloric acid in the stomach. Chronic "acid stomach" is exceedingly dangerous and sufferers should do either one of two things: Either they can go on a limited and often disagreeable diet, avoiding foods that disagree with them, that irritate the stomach and lead to excess acid secretion or they can eat as they please in practice and make it a practice to counteract the effect of the harmful acid and prevent the formation of gas, sourness or premature fermentation by the use of a little Bismarck's Magnesia at their meals.

There is probably no better, safer or more reliable stomachic than Bismarck's Magnesia and it is widely used for this purpose. It has no direct action on the stomach, and is not a diuretic. But a teaspoonful of the powder or a couple of five grain tablets in a little water with the food will neutralize the excess acidity which is present and prevent its further increase. This removes the whole cause of the trouble and the meal digests naturally and healthfully without use of painful tablets or artificial laxatives.

Get a few ounces of Bismarck's Magnesia from any reliable druggist. Ask for either powder or tablets. It never acts as a liquid, milk or citrate and the Bismarck form is not a laxative. This plan and eat what you want, your next meal and see if this isn't the best advice you ever had on "what to eat."

BLUEM'S

YOU - can't be a Hermit.

“No Man Liveth to Himself”

¶ What one man does affects the welfare of every other person in this world. We are so bound up by the ties of our civilization that what I do may be of vital importance to you, and what you do may affect my whole life for weal or woe.

¶ We are in each other's service. You may make or sell the article that I must have; I may so affect the distribution of that article that you cannot sell it. With our mutual dependence we should work together, no matter what our occupation. That is the only cure for the world's suffering and unrest.

¶ In the struggle to live well, in the effort to reduce the high cost of living, we must remember that one man's wastefulness is paid for by others, that whatever is done to delay production or whatever is left undone affects the whole nation---yes, the world.

¶ For the whole world is crying aloud now for the production of our hands and our brains. There is a shortage of materials and labor, a lack of manufactured goods, that makes us pay more for inferior articles, that opens the door to the profiteer, and that requires our utmost efforts to live well.

What Will You Do About It?

The solution of the great questions that beset this country and the solution of the questions that beset the individual are in the hands of the citizenship. No matter what legislation may undertake, what the government itself may do, in the final analysis it is in the hands of the people. Their efforts will make of this country the paradise of the free, the home of the happy. What you and I may do will determine the whole welfare.

Let's Earn More

Every man who thinks knows of the waste in our lives. Go to the factories, see the time lost, watch the material destroyed, we know lives and usefulness are both sacrificed—and remember that in the final analysis the man who buys the goods must pay.

Then determine for yourself that you will save this waste of time and materials and thereby produce more at less expense. Put the principles of sound thrift into your daily work.

It has always been—and it always will be in the long run—that the efficient man earns more. When preventable waste is avoided, there is more for all of us, because we shall all have more.

Produce More—Earn More

Speed up production on farm and in factory, not by back breaking crushing toil, but by careful use of time and material. You must thereby have more, and when you have more you will earn more.

Curb the Profiteer

Only because production isn't up to the demand can the profiteer exist. Given plenty of the goods we must have, the prices cannot be manipulated, the stocks controlled. The reasonable laws of supply and demand must prevail.

Invest Wisely

Government securities are the best investment for the individual, because they are perfectly safe, easily converted into cash, are tax free and pay good interest.

Savings Stamps invest sums slightly less than five dollars, and return 4.27% interest.

Treasury Savings Certificates in $100 or $1000 denominations return the same interest.

Treasury Certificates of Indebtedness may be had of the banks.

Government bonds are always good purchases.

Invest your money in government securities.

Waste Not—Want Not

Then determine for yourself that you will give an honest dollar's worth in return for the dollar, and that you will insist on 100 cents worth for every dollar—or do without. Soon the determination of millions like you will bring about the right state of affairs.

Save More—Have More

Systematize your expenditures. See what you can save. Your individual welfare demands it. Your government's great debt demands it. Your future happiness depends upon it. Produce more. Earn more. Save more.

There's a program on this week that cold experience shows is the greatest advance for any man. Resolve earnestly that you will make this your personal ten commandments:

A Personal Program

Increase production and thereby earn more. Decrease waste and thereby save more. Save more systematically and thereby have more. Invest wisely and thereby enjoy more. Every man in a factory, every man in an office, every man in a store, every man on a farm, can profit individually by this program of conservation. And when all of us profit more, the community will be better to live in; the nation will be stronger and happier, and we shall make this old world the garden of delight.

You don't need legislation on this; you needn't wait. Just determine yourself on greater thrift in industry; greater thrift in home, and greater joy in living.

As England Views It

ENGLAND IS watching closely the investigation at Washington which was started over the charges of Admiral Sims concerning the manner in which our navy department went into the fight with Germany. The press of that nation is not disposed to be alarmed over the alleged statement that Sims told we would as soon fight the English as the Germans.

ONE IMPORTANT newspaper declares that General Pershing gave them the first blow when he declared America won the war and that Admiral Sims strikes in a different fashion by revealing the lack of enthusiasm on the part of the navy heads. Another declares that Secretary Daniels' attitude has appeared to be on the north side of friendly.

OUR LITTLE rumpus over war decorations promises to reach farther than at first was supposed, but it is not to be feared that it will lead to international difficulties. The two great English-speaking nations are cemented together too closely to allow a row such as this to create ill feeling. It may hurt our allies' pride just as it hurts ours to know that there was lack of co-operation in any wise when we were endeavoring to eliminate a common enemy. Time, however, will erase all this unpleasantness.

Owning A Home

WHEN ONE OF the speakers in the thrift week campaign declared yesterday in addressing a large group of industrial workers that the woman in the home is responsible in most cases for the purchase of a place to live
he hit the nail on the head. If it were possible to get actual data in Lima we believe that in nine cases out of ten this would be found to be the case.

MUCH DEPENDS on how the wife manages.
If she is a good business woman she will insist that a home be bought as soon as the family is in financial circumstances that will permit
it and she will see that the finances are taken care of so that they do not have to wait until their declining years. She will manage, save and use economy in a dozen different ways.

POSSESSION of an abode should be the first thing a man thinks about after assuming the responsibilities of a married man. He should strive to place his wife in such circumstances that she would have something for a rainy day
if he were to be taken away. Owning a home and carrying sufficient life insurance are the two best ways of accomplishing this. Systematic saving is another big factor. It is easy to save once one adopts a plan whereby a little is laid away out of each pay envelope.

What Germany Wants

THE THINGS WHICH Germany most needs in the way of raw material from us are cotton, copper, hard steel, bronze, asbestos, graphite, good lubricating oil. In addition she needs about 100 million dollars' worth of food to carry her thru till spring and to give her workmen the energy necessary for normal production. In any explanation of the present German economics, those items are fundamental. They are the Law of the Prophets.

BUT, WITH REGARD to everything on that list, and much that is not on it, the capital fact to remember is, first that Germany needs, not a little of these materials, but enormous quantities of them; also that the mark is rated so low she can't afford even small amounts of them.

EVERYONE IN Germany who reasons at all,
knows perfectly well that Germany existed only by means of over-production; unless this peak of over-production can be regained, 20,000,000 Germans have got to leave Germany or starve. This is a simple question of calculation that can be shown very easily.

Guarding Against Flu

WARNINGS are being issued almost daily
by Healthier Jones that each individual must exercise every possible precaution to prevent a re-occurrence of the influenza epidemic in this locality. When we remember the great death toll this disease took one and two years ago and the inconveniences and illness caused by it, the importance of preventing it from again gaining a foothold in our locality is forcibly brought to mind.

THE MALADY now is sweeping in this direction. It has alarmed government officials, who are taking precautions to prevent it from gaining the headway it did upon its first appearance. They may be able to do much to hinder its deadly grip, but much depends upon the individual. The weather is right for contracting the disease. Too much care cannot be exercised and the recommendations of our health commissioner should be followed to the letter.

PILGRIMS' PROGRESS IN SOCIETY

In our advice to beginners we would say that the shortest cut to social preferment lies in the entertainment of distinguished persons.

Lucella and I received our first tip
in this matter when the James Frothingham Binks entertained a celebrated poet from India with a name I have never been able to remember and that I had never heard before. He wore a lavender kimono and recited things. I will not say that he was an ex-pullman porter,
because I never say mean things.
One can accomplish just as much by innuendo.

However, the very next week Luella and I entertained a celebrated poetess of passion from the West.
We had learned that if, at the fateful zero hour, when you go over the social top, you can take a distinguished guest with you your battle is won. This girl, an old friend of Lucella's, passed through the ordeal nobly and recited half the American Anthology the first evening. She has never had anything of her own published.

We followed this up almost immediately by introducing Lucella's
Uncle Hector from the far West.
Uncle Hector was a prominent painter. We did not think it necessary to say exactly what he painted,
and no one in our set was unimpor-
tantly enough to ask.

Uncle Hector had a distressing way of turning the conversation in the direction of hogs, and we were obliged to explain that the raising of fancy swine was a hobby of uncle's—sort of a side line, as it were. Honesty prompts me to say that so far as old masters were concerned, I don't believe Uncle Hector could have told a genuine Rub-instein from an imitation Van Winkle, but I do know personally that when he was a younger man he painted some of the best houses in Kansas City.

HEALTH ADVICE

By William Brady, M. D.

I was born lucky; father was a physician of great respect for science, and mother was blessed with common sense. Before they took out the marriage license they both submitted to careful physical examinations and obtained health certificates from competent physicians.
This was done by my father-to-be because he believes it is a duty a prospective bridegroom owes the guardian of the prospective bride; and my mother-to-be underwent an examination just for the satisfaction of knowing her health status.

Of course father's scientific knowledge and mother's common sense made it rather hard on the neighbors at times, but as I say, it was lucky for me. You know, most babies are considered suitable subjects for experimentation by neighbors and relatives, even by friends. I heard a health department doctor tell my father that one-seventh of all babies born in the United States die before they are a year old, and he added that half of those preventable deaths occur because of bad health-ignorant parents and other experiment on us babies before we know enough to object to it. He said that a grownup would not permit an old granny to run in and prescribe for him if he were ill with some serious trouble, but babies are deemed fair prey for just that kind of ill treatment. Well, it does seem strange to me, though I suppose I am too young yet to have sound judgment,
but it certainly gets my capra to figure out how a really good father or mother can permit such dangerous trifling with a sick baby, if the parent loves the baby at all.

My father being a doctor, I received precious little medicine in my first year and no caudal infant food at all. They fed me nothing but live food. Father held that dead food is not wholesome for little tikes if live food can be had for love or money. There was plenty of love in our family, he thought, even if there wasn't much money. In fact he said we were one of the richest families in town, though it was hard hoarding the first few years. Mother being a trained nurse before she came to live at our house, had seen enough of the harm done babies by improper food and make-believe or artificial feeding. She therefore hoped and prayed that if she was to be a mother she might be a hundred percent mother and not a selfish imitation.

I said I was born lucky. Any baby is with a mother like that. It is a great thing for a baby to have the full benefit of Old Doctor Nature's

Peerless Baby Food, a sample of which is delivered with every order.
I got mine, and believe me, that man Nature who manufactures it, knows exactly what a baby needs to make him thrive, grow and be happy. Dad says a man who takes kindly away from a baby is a kind and loving individual compared with an imitation mother who deliberately denies her baby the boon of Nature's nourishment.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
Reducing Acidity
Please tell me a diet which will diminish an excessive acidity of the stomach.
(B. S. S.)

ANSWER—These attitudes tend to increase the normal acidity of urine.
Meats, eggs, whole grains, peanuts,
and bases of benzene and contain phosphorus, phosphates, and cranberries, these fruits yield alkaline ash. These articles tend to decrease the urine acidity. Milk, water taken freely, vegetable soups, all the vegetables and all the fruits, excepting those above mentioned. The following are especially useful for reducing excessive acidity.
Potatoes, lettuce, apples, oranges, bananas, raisins, lemonade.

Tattooed and Sorry
I have tattooed on my arm. Is there any way of having it removed? It now proves very embarrassing to me.
(H. J.)

ANSWER—Tattooing the human body ought to be a felony. The only way of removing the stain is by plastic surgery—dissecting out the tattooed skin and grafting normal skin over the denuded area.

Bleeding Piles
Would you advise a woman 26 years of age who suffers with various veins above and below the knees and frequent attacks of bleeding piles, to marry?
(A. L.)

ANSWER—Yes, but she should have the piles operated on nevertheless, as a caution against serious undermining of health.

President of Parents' Teachers Assn. Says No Home Should Be Without Tanlac.

"It certainly is wonderful how quickly the right medicine will get a person to feeling right again," said Mrs. O. J. Wheeler, residing at 1431 Harrison street, Kansas City, Missouri, while discussing the merits of Tanlac, recently.

Mrs. Wheeler is president of the Parent-Teachers Association, Hamilton School District, a prominent member of the Women's Bee Hive Auxiliary of Macabees, also a graduate nurse, and is not only popular socially, but is active in all civic matters and is one of the recognized leaders among women in her community.

When asked if she was willing for her statement regarding Tanlac to be made public, Mrs. Wheeler said:
"Yes, indeed, and you may tell them I am speaking from experience when I say I consider Tanlac by far the best medicine I have ever found.
If I had not taken it I believe I would still be a sick woman, as I had just tried everything, and I am glad to make a statement that may be of some benefit to others who are trying to find relief."

"Five years ago I received injuries in a fall, which resulted in my health becoming very poor and I could get nothing to do me any good.
Then in the Spring of last year I was taken down with the 'Flu' and being already in a weakened run-down condition, the attack was extremely severe on me. I was left with no appetite and my stomach in a worse condition than ever. I could hardly eat anything without suffering intense pain and such a pressure on my heart that I could scarcely breathe. I was losing weight, had the worst sort of headaches and was so dizzy at times I could hardly walk. I also had severe pains in the small of my back, suffered from heartburn, constipation and bloating, and never knew what a well day was."

"I had been reading the testimonials for Tanlac for some time and,
as some of them were given by people of my acquaintance, I concluded to try the medicine myself. Well, it just seemed to suit my case exactly and has acted so differently from other medicines I have used. By the time my first bottle was gone I had a good appetite, and the gas had stopped forming on my stomach.
Then I bought another bottle, then another and so on and just kept improving until my ailments all disappeared. I am now enjoying better health than I have had in five years.
In fact I am feeling unusually strong and well and all the praise, thanks and gratitude for this wonderful change in my condition belong to Tanlac. If everybody knew its value as I do no home would be without it."

Tanlac is sold in Lima at Hunter's Drug Store and the leading druggists in every town.

There are laws protecting you aren't there laws to protect you

other states will enact fur laws

Minnesota's law was not passed

Such a law should not seek to prevent the sale of imitation furs,
but it would demand that such

PLEDGE SUPPORT FOR BIGGER CITY

Guests at Jazz Dinner Enthusiastic for Development

BACK CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

Speakers Urge Co-operation to Build Lima

Enthusiasm and a determination to boost Lima to the limit were the keynote of the Jazz Dinner at the Elks home Tuesday night.

Three hundred guests at the dinner pledged support to the Chamber of Commerce in making Lima one of the foremost cities in the state.

Enthusiasm for a bigger Lima to reach the 100,000 mark in population in a few years ran high. The natural advantages of the city to put it in the desired class were outlined by a brilliant group of loyalists to the city.

The efforts of the Rotary, Kiwanis and similar clubs to help the development of the city were pledged by speakers representing the organizations to be merged in the future with the Chamber of Commerce.

The use of the Chamber of Commerce as a driving force to secure new factories, plants and industries for the city were urged by the speakers.

The purpose of the dinner was kept a secret until the time for the occasion. It was surrounded with a mystery.

Representatives of the city in all walks of life were represented at the dinner. "Men characteristic of Lima" as they were described by the speakers.

Arnold Joerns, advertising expert, Chicago, headed the list of speakers. His remarks on industrial situation in America were well received. Deportation of all radicals immediately was held to be a means to run the country of a direct menace. "Either make them live America, or go back to their own countries," he said.

He was followed by Walter S. Jackson, attorney, first secretary of the former Lima Progressive association. Jackson outlined the policy and also the hardships undergone before the present Chamber of Commerce was achieved.

Jackson was succeeded by R. B. Dunn, general manager of the Deisel company. Dunn urged team work on the part of Lima boosters to aid in the development of the city.

Other speakers consisting of C. A. Cadacobs, president of the Merchants association, O. J. Smith, Ohio Steel Foundry, Austin Potter, Elwanis Club, George Bayley, Rotary Club, Simon S. Fisher, La Real Estate Board, urged support of the Chamber of Commerce.

Judge Kent W. Hughes, court of appeals presided as toast master.

The music for the occasion was popular jazz. The guests sang popular songs, parodies of popular songs and a "Dear Old Lima," booster song.

Before the close of the session the guests were asked by Chalmers Brown, of the Chalmers-Brown company for a rising vote of support for the development of the city. The vote was unanimous.

A meeting Friday night when definite plans for the future of the city will be mapped is scheduled in the Chamber of Commerce auditorium.

LIMA DISTRICT NEWS IN BRIEF

ST. MARYS.—A sycamore log, 14 feet long and containing 1,300 feet board measure, was hauled from the Henry Koop farm south of town to a local sawmill. The log measures three feet five inches in diameter at the top end, five feet one inch at the stump end. The same tree furnished several slightly smaller logs. The grove whence it was taken contains a number of forest giants.

ST. MARYS.—Despite his youth, Ned Smith, 16, Boy Scout member of the St. Marys High school junior class, held the attention of the sophomores, along with several grown-ups, whom he instructed during a regular school session with a nature talk on "Small Animals of North America." A conceded local authority on wild life, the lad dealt effectively with rabbit, squirrel, raccoon, skunk, their habits, living quarters and value to mankind. Specimens of squirrel and skunk mounted with his own hands were displayed.

ST. MARYS.—Despite continued cold weather, an air vent four acres in extent remains open a mile offshore from Lake St. Marys' east bank.

The orifice is girt with solid ice eleven inches to a foot in thickness. Due doubtless to some simple cause, the crater is thus far unexplained. Snow dunes on the Lake range to twelve feet in depth.

ST. MARYS.—A grove of northwestern Ohio maple trees is capable of supplying all the sugar needed in the United States. So says a copy of the "Mechanics' Geography," published in the year 1806 and belonging to Squire W. H. Swift. "An impenetrable wilderness," the venerable book says, lies west of the Mississippi. "Oil coming from the ground in Pennsylvania," is said to be remedial for rheumatism. None of the American centers are listed among the "great cities of the world."

WAPAKONETA.—R. J. Deponbrock is organizing Retail Merchants' Association here, with fifty members.

WAPAKONETA.—Dr. C. L. Dine of Minster, having declined to serve as a member of the Auglaize county board of health, Dr. F. S. Fledderjohann of New Bremen is named in his stead. Auglaize county is one of the first in the state to have district health board at work, under the Griswold law, amending the Hughes

WOMAN AND LADY

A wise and kind woman was asked the other day by a child to tell her the difference between the words, "woman" and "lady." Her kindness as well as her wisdom were reflected in her answer, for she told the child that a lady was a woman who was always considerate of others.

Then she went on to make the most of the inquiry by explaining that there are certain earmarks that usually indicate the lady—such as refinement in dress, so as to avoid attracting attention by ultra modes; modulation of voice, avoiding loud talk or laughter in public places; good grooming, both mental and physical, and other signs by which the woman who is a real lady is known. "But," she cautioned the child in summing up, "a woman may dress well, she may have a beautifully modulated voice, she may be perfectly groomed and well educated, and yet fail in the requirements of a lady."

I have seen women of society who had all these other attributes of a lady, who yet fell short when addressing their servants—speaking to them in a condescending way and showing such a lack of consideration for their comfort that they could not well aspire to being called ladies. The real lady is thoughtful of others, and treats them as she would like to be treated in their stead.

She illustrated by telling how, during the rush preceding Christmas, a poorly dressed woman had been so pushed in a large crowd that she had dropped her basket containing a large number of packages. Most of the hurrying throng passed on unheeding, but a well-dressed woman stopped and helped her gather up the lost parcels, smiling at her cordially the while. "That was a real lady," explained the teacher, "the others who went by, even though better dressed, some of them, were just women."

Don't you think she made a nice distinction?

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.
Dear Miss Smart:—Will you please recommend to me something for falling hair? Mine is coming out badly.

M. B.
I cannot give you the names of any patent medicines in this column, but would recommend that you get a good tonic from your druggist. However, there is nothing else so good for your hair as regular treatment, that you must give it your self, every night. This means careful brushing, massage and the use of a good tonic.

Dear Miss Smart:—A man who used to be a very good friend of mine has come to our town recently, and has been calling on me and asking me to go out with him. He was married, but has not been living with his wife recently, and I understand, is going to get a divorce. Do you think it improper for me to go out with him?

B. N.
Not only improper, but very foolish, just as playing with fire is foolish. If he had already obtained his divorce, it would be entirely different. I think it is not quite honorable for him to ask you to place yourself in a position where you may be a target for gossip.

Dear Miss Smart: I am a woman thirty years old and have known a young man twenty-eight years old for the past nine months. I went with him a couple of months, and then I did not hear from him or see him for about four months. Since then he has come back and now we are engaged.

The other day I received a letter from another girl saying she had known him and had been keeping company with him the past two years and that he was very ill last spring and sent for her. She was the four months I knew nothing about him. Then he came back and treated her very badly and finally broke off with her entirely in spite of the fact that she had been a good loyal friend and very much in love with him.

She was especially good to him when he was ill. She said he told her that he and I had quarreled and that I was very anxious to get married, which is true. She says he has been seeing her regularly up to the present time.

Love and Married Life

By IDA McGLONE GIBSON

"YES," I answered Helen, "that is what I said: 'If love were only all!'"

"And Anthony Hope made his heroine understand that love is not all. A few months ago I thought he was mistaken, but I know now that he was right. While love has been called the greatest thing in the world," continued Helen, "there are many other things of life that bulk almost as large."

"Helen, dear," I interrupted, "aren't you happy?" Have you found out that you have made a mistake? Is Bobby—

Helen held up her hand. "Bobby is everything I could wish," she said loyally, "but no two people, no matter how much they love each other, can absolutely defy the conventions of society and not pay the price. Neither can two people live in a world populated by other human beings and be outside of certain rules to which society subscribes."

"You know, Katherine, dear, that Bobby is the most gregarious of men. He is not happy unless he is returning the warm handshake of a friend, or raising his hat chivalrously while his smiles at a pretty woman acquaintance. Why, Katherine, that is one of the reasons his love for Ruth cooled. She didn't go with him among his friends and he felt that he must often stay at home with her when he would have been happier among a gay crowd."

"I would go anywhere with him, but society won't let me come within its doors. I'm Bobby's wife, legally, but for some capricious reasons I am sent to Coventry."

Break One of the Laws
"Not a capricious reason, my dear," I said. "You simply broke one of those laws that you have just been describing."

"And the woman pays," said Helen bitterly.

"Yes, even yet the woman pays," I answered.

"I have persuaded Bobby to take a long trip," said Helen with an effort, "and he is leaving tomorrow morning."

"Oh, I am so sorry!"

"Don't worry about me, Katherine, if you will only let me see you occasionally I shall not be lonely, and I think that Bob and I have got to the point where we must be separated a little while. We have been too much together."

"Oh, aren't you going with him?"

"No."

"Oh, I'm so glad! It clears up everything for me!" I exclaimed.

"What do you mean, Katherine?"

"Why, my dear, I came over here with the more or less undefined idea in my mind of persuading you to take a trip with me, but I wasn't sure how I was going to get Bob to let you go. And here I find that everything is all ready to my hand!"

Helen's face lighted up. "That'll be glorious. Where shall we go? I was just settling myself down to long and lonely weeks. I guess it's going to come out all right, after all, isn't it?"

"I hope so," was my rather despondent comment.

"Oh, Katherine, here I have been talking about my troubles and I knew by your face when you came in that you had yours. And besides I saw the morning papers, dear. I met that Mr. Shepard when we first came here and I liked him immensely, and I have seen that Miss Moreland flashing about in her car. Isn't she beautiful?"

"Yes," I said with an effort.

"I didn't mean to pry," said Helen quickly. "Tell me whatever you want to, Katherine, and I will be most interested, as you know, but do not feel that you have to tell me anything that you would rather keep to yourself."

FEAR STORM NEAR
"Let's talk about going away," I said, not because I did not know that in time I should confide in Helen, but because I knew that if I said anything more I should burst into tears.

Very opportunely, at this moment, Bobby Gaylord walked in. I could see that he was delighted to find me there.

"I am more glad to see you than you can possibly know," he said. "John has been telling me ever since we came to town that you were too ill to see anyone, and I have known all the time that Helen was longing to come and see you. I tried to make her go down in and see you, but some of this clap-net idea on the subject of first calls and so forth seemed to have gotten into her head."

Helen looked at me significantly. "Just think, Bobby," she said, "Katherine has come to ask me if I would go with her to some quiet place where she can recuperate further. She was rather afraid to come, as she thought you would not wish to be left alone, but when I told her you were going away, and I could accompany her as well as not, she was simply delighted."

"You can go better than not, honey," said Bob as he stooped to kiss her.

Millions Need Pepto-Mangan

In Many Homes Better Health Is Simply a Matter of Better Blood

Pepto-Mangan Improves Blood

Composed of Approved Blood-Making Elements—Put Up in Liquid and Tablet Form

Are you tired and weak and "blue"? Do you say to yourself, "What's the use of living? What do I get out of life, dragging through this drab existence in this unhappy way?"

You don't feel well and you don't know why you have so little energy to do anything, and you get all tired out before it is done. There are millions in busy America that have such feelings now and then, and they are to be pitied. But there is help. Unless some serious malady is at the bottom of their trouble, a few weeks of Pepto-Mangan will work a wonderful change. Pepto-Mangan puts new vigor into the blood, and the blood is the life fluid. With plenty of rich, red blood coursing through one's body one is pretty likely to feel good and vigorous and be strong and look healthy.

Go to your druggist and ask for "Gude's Pepto-Mangan." Be sure to say "Gude's." If "Gude's" is not on the package it is not Pepto-Mangan. It is put up in both liquid and tablet form. Tell the druggist which you prefer. There is no difference in medicinal value.

DOES TYPIST EARN HER SALARY?

Public Service Girl Says She is Not Overpaid

MODERN STENO AID TO BOSS

Usually Girls Are More Efficient Than Men She Says

Does the average stenographer earn her salary? Or does she waste her own and the time of her employer? Had she better, by reason of her unsuitability to this particular line of work, be in some other line of business? Possibly she would fit in a store or a milliner shop?

She does not only earn her salary and instead of her being a weight on the Boss's hand, she is an asset to him.

And most stenographers are suited to their work. There is no need for the present generation of stenos to seek other occupations.

This is all according to Miss Ouida N. Loudon, public stenographer, Elderman building.

Further than that she is not altogether the gum-chewing, novel reading individual some are wont to believe her," she added.

Stenographers as a rule are quick to sense the needs of the modern business day. They constitute a valuable aid to the business man.

"A girl stenographer by reason of her intuition is able more reliably to fathom out what the Boss wants than the male stenographer. This intuition is a big aid to the modern typist."

"And who could disagree that the presence of the fair sex does not add to the appearance of the office? In many offices the place would look rather bare without her."

"In short the modern stenographer has grown to be a help mate to the man of business."

"The only complaint of the stenographer is that the Boss does not start in around the end of the day and with a 'well let's clean up some of this back correspondence' and hand her 50 letters to write right at the time she is pining for the fresh air outside."

The Evidence Is at Your Door

Lima proof is what you want and the statement of this highly respected resident will banish all doubt:

A. J. Roth, machinist, 694 S. Union St., says: "My kidneys were out of order and my back ached like a toothache. I couldn't lift much of anything because when I did I got a stitch in my back and sometimes had to lay off work for three or four days. Some days my kidneys acted too often and the secretions were scanty and burning. Mornings I was so stiff and lame when I got up I could hardly get around. I heard about Doan's Kidney Pills, through a friend and I got some and started using them. I soon got relief and after I had taken three boxes of Doan's my kidneys acted naturally and my back was as strong as could be."

AMERICAN LEGION WILL TAKE NO ACTION AGAINST JACK

AS UNIT FIGHTING MEN WILL AVERT WAR RECORD CONTROVERSY—OFFICIALS OF ORGANIZATION MAKE ANNOUNCEMENT TUESDAY

By HENRY L. FARRELL.

NEW YORK—The American Legion, as a unit, will take no part in the Jack Dempsey war record controversy.

A policy of "hands off" has been announced from its national headquarters.

In a message to Jack Kearns, the champion's manager, Franklin D'Oller, national commander, sounds a clear note when he said:

"It is not a function of the American Legion to review acts of the government during the war in connection with the classification of men subject to the selective service act, or to review the claims of any individual who finds it necessary to justify his exemption from military service."

This answer was made to Kearns' request for a hearing on the "black" charges.

Kearns has given an ear to the rumbling from some organizations of former soldiers who express sentiment against giving Dempsey a huge pile of money for fighting in the ring when he failed to fight the biggest fight of all.

In a recent message to William Fox, New York bidder for the fight, the champion's manager said there was a good reason why the fight could not be held in the United States, referring, it is presumed, to the agitation against Dempsey's war record.

Sentiment among the ex-soldiers and sport writers, the latter including many gold strikers, is divided on the issue. Inasmuch as Dempsey did not run away when called, that he did not claim exemption and that he went to the shipyards to work instead of donning a boxing instructor's uniform, have been referred to in many letters as reasons why the champion should not be discriminated against when so many other athletes who did not even pound rivets, are prospering without any stigma attached to them.

LATEST ASSAULT FROM "STARS AND STRIPES"

The latest assault on Dempsey comes from "The Home Sector," a periodical published by the former "Stars and Stripes" staff, in which an editorial pours forth some choice sarcasm on his title of "America's greatest fighter."

"America's greatest fighter," it reads, "hero of a few weeks in the shipyards, hero of a few minutes' battle with Jess Willard, hero of the fur over suit and the fat bank account, hero of the moving pictures at several thousand dollars a week, hero of two peaceful and eminently profitable years in the United States while the greatest world's championship was being fought several thousand miles away."

It further upbraids him for "never having felt a gun on his shoulder for never plodding thru mud with a pack on his back, and shells whistling about."

Let them be just and fair with it. Not all the men who were in the uniform experienced these discomforts. Many escaped service with a desk job that was far easier than rivering in the shipyards.

It is to be hoped that some of the most vitriolic opponents of Dempsey have a record themselves that can hold up to the light before they censure some other man for not doing his duty.

Kearns threatened "legal action" against Bronson.

BROTHERS PLAY WITH CELINA

Two pairs of brothers will be playing on the Celina basketball team Thursday evening when that team meets the "Y" Triangles at the association gym.

The Schulte brothers, Arthur and Charlie will play forward and guard respectively while Bob Schulte and his brother Bill Schulte will hold down the other forward and guard positions.

The two sets of brothers have been hitting it at a fair rate of speed to date this season and with center Vanderhaar, have formed into a combination which has been tearing things loose around these parts.

In the first game between the Triangles and the Celina five at Celina some time ago the brothers put up the class of ball which defeated Pyle's team and the locals will have their jon cut out for them holding his quartet down in the coming game.

SOUTH SECONDS TO BE BUSY

The South II second basketball quintet will play the Wapakoneta High school regular team at the South gymnasium next Friday while the older boys are at Findlay.

Coach Hendershot is grasping all opportunities possible to give his men practice. In Wapakoneta they will find stiff opposition. The visitors claim to have a fast team that will trim the locals easily.

A preliminary game between two class teams will probably be played. Thursday night the seconds will meet the "Y" Junior team at the association gym as a preliminary to the Triangle-Celina game.

Two games in as many nights is quite a task for the youngsters but Coach Hendershot of the school five who is running the team says that the youngsters will be equal to the emergency.

ST. ELMAS IN TOLEDO GO

Kid St. Elmas will make another attempt to fight before a Toledo home next Monday according to present announcement of his manager Ed Schlatte.

The local bantam has been matched by the Toledo Athletic club for a bout with either Johnny Andrews or Jimmy Katz for a preliminary to a big card at that athletic club.

Which man St. Elmas will meet has not been announced but it is believed that Andrews will be the choice of the T. A. C. heads.

Manager Schlatte announces that his boy will not make the Dayton trip next week as desired by fight promoters of the Gem City.

Any local boys who wish to go a few rounds of the sparring game are requested to turn up at St. Elmas' training quarters at any time.

ONE-LEGGED LAD CRACK ATHLETE

CLEVELAND, O.—A one-legged freshman at Case College led the students in a series of athletic tests, according to the records published Saturday. He is R. K. Kriss, formerly a star in high school athletics. Kriss' right leg is gone. He competed on an even basis.

With the aid of an artificial leg he circled the gymnasium track twice, two seconds ahead of his nearest competitor. Then he discarded the leg apparatus and made a broad jump of over eight feet, made the rope climb in two seconds better than the Case college record; came close to the Case records for swimming and led the list in fence vaulting a hop of five feet, seven inches.

OVER 26,000,000 YANKS IN GAMES

That more than twenty-six million participants entered into the games and sports of the A. E. F. "over there" are the startling figures that are shown in the book just published by the American Sports Publishing Company in the form of "The Athletic Almanac of the A. E. F. and Inter-Allied Games."

The book is a complete record both of the A. E. F. and the Inter-Allied games and is illustrated from more than one thousand photos showing activities in all forms of sport.

FACULTY TRIMS GARFORD FIVE

Rallies in the 5-minute over-time period which netted 12 points enabled South High Faculty to trim Garford's five Tuesday night in the hottest game of the three Industrial League contests at the Y gym.

The trucks were leading until the final minutes of the second half when South thru good shots of Conner drew the game to the fifty-fifty mark necessitating the five-minute overtime period.

In these extra seconds of the game South ran wild and scored more than 2 points a minute, mainly thru the shooting of Conner and Hendershot.

The playing of Conner and Hendershot were the features of the South win.

The Locomotives continued to win beating Garford 26 to 13 in a game which was replete with good playing in the first half and many sensational long shots by Farrell in the second half.

The Garford team took the lead and held it during the first half but the Locos came with a rush toward the middle of the second period and thru long shots of Farrell and Miller forced far into the lead.

In the opening game of the evening, the East Iron quintet trimmed Ohio Steele 39 to 7.

WARNS MORANMEN TO KEEP HEADS

"There is just one thing which would knock the Cincinnati team out of the pennant next season," says John Evers' "and that is the same thing which has prevented every other champion club from repeating in recent seasons."

"That is carelessness caused by conceit and overconfidence; carelessness caused by easy money and inflated ideas of self-importance."

"The Braves, by their win in 1914, turned the whole baseball world upside down. They didn't repeat in 1915 because they regarded themselves as real 'miracle' men, and thought they couldn't be beaten till they woke up with a shock."

"I was one of them, I know. 'Pat Moran's Philadelphia Club' turned the trick in 1915, and could they get swelled in the head, it's all nerves come back, deteriorating rapidly with them."

Old Friends are True Friends

The man, who loves a dog and a pipe, has two staunch friends that never fail him in good luck or in bad. They give all and ask nothing in return. Day by day they become nearer and dearer to him. The man who has not a dog and a pipe has missed two of the greatest things this good old world can give.

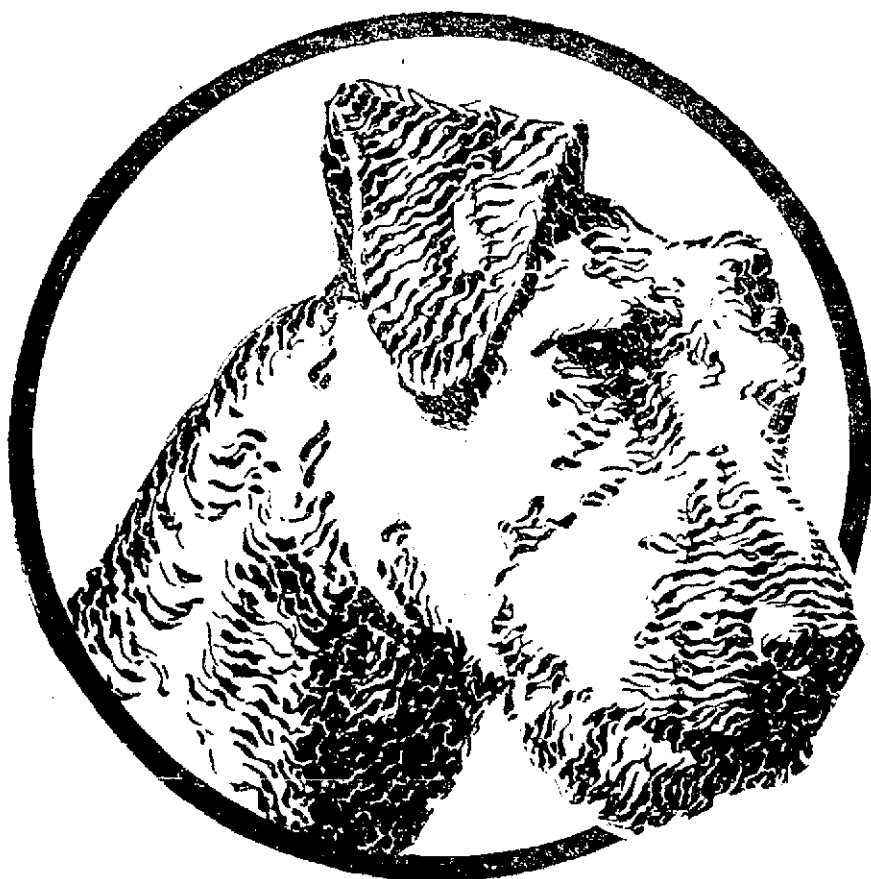

Every man who loves his pipe should know Velvet, the one tobacco that brings out all of a pipe's best and sweetest qualities. Your pipe takes on an added friendliness from Velvet's choice Kentucky leaf aged in the wood to a mellowness that's rich and smooth as cream.

Your pipe takes on a mild sweetness that is Velvet's natural tobacco sweetness. And around you hovers the real tobacco fragrance that all good pipe smokers love.

Never did Velvet Joe say a wiser, truer thing than this:

"Folks say you can't buy friendship. You can buy a dog and a pipe and good old Velvet—and I reckon no man ever had three better friends."

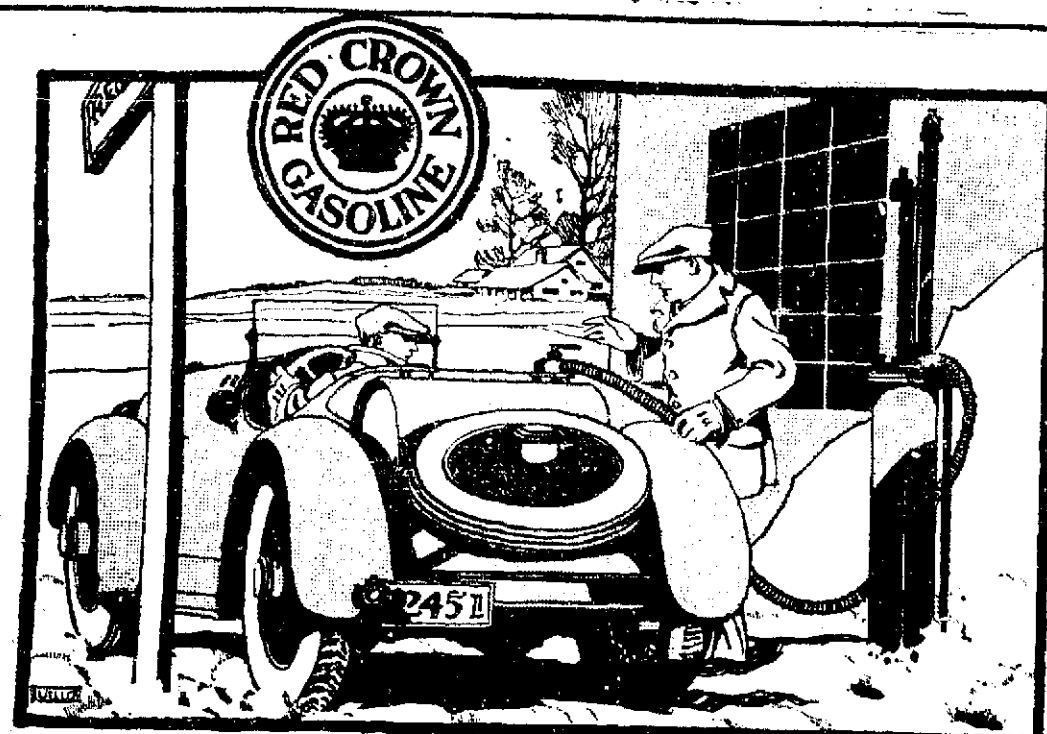

Leggett & Platts Tobacco Co.

There's a lot of pipe-loads in every big generous tin of Velvet, and every pipe-load is good tobacco at its best.

Short Shavings

Capt. Al Waddell relates a weird experience he encountered over here. It was during mess and the orderly officers gliding down the long table, demanded if there was any complaint about the food.

Private Janner rose slowly and extended his cup.

"Taste this, sir," he said.

The officer took a sip, hesitated a moment, and said soothingly:

"Very excellent soup. I call it."

"Yes, sir," agreed Janner, but the corporal says it's tea, and the cook saved it as coffee, and just now I found a toothbrush in it, sir."

"I want your opinion on a matter. Would you advise me to borrow $10 to help me out of a tight place?"

"By all means," said the lawyer.

"Very good. Let me have ten."

"That's all right. No fee for legal advice is $10 and we'll call it square."

A colonel who was a stern disciplinarian gathered his officers about him and issued orders for the regiment's forthcoming train journey to the coast.

"I don't object to a innocent good time on the men's part during this journey, he said "but you will see to it that there's no sweating, no skunking, no card playing, and as little cigarette smoking as possible."

Pardon me, colonel," said a timid voice, "but would you object if I took along a little plain sewing to occupy my company and myself?"

You cannot judge by appearance in this life.

"You surely cannot," replied the tall butler. "I imagine, moonshine liquor mostly looks like pure distilled spring water."

Swift & Company's 1919 Earnings

How They Affected You

During the twelve months ended November 1, 1919, (its fiscal year), Swift & Company transacted its large volume of business on the smallest margin of profit in its history.

Sales over $1,200,000,000.00

Net earnings $13,870,181.34

Our shipments were in excess of 5,500,000,000 lbs.

This means that our earnings were less than 1 1/2 cents on each dollar of sales, or a quarter of a cent on each pound shipped.

Consumer—

The average consumer eats about 1/2 lb. of meat per day—180 lbs. per year. If he purchased only Swift & Company products he would have contributed only 45 cents (180 lbs. @ 1/4 cent a pound)—a year profit to Swift & Company for its investment and service, less than one cent per week.

Our earnings were so small as to have practically no effect on the family meat bill.

Live Stock Raiser—

Swift & Company handled in 1919 over 16,000,000 head of live stock. You can figure for yourself that our earnings of 1 1/2 cents on each dollar of sales are too small to affect the price you received for your stock.

We paid all it was humanly possible to pay considering what the meat and by-products could be sold for.

Why Make Your Will?

First, to save cost and trouble settling your estate.

Second, to protect the people you desire to benefit.

Third—perhaps most important—to show you exactly where you stand if anything should happen.

Who Should Administer?

The safest administrator is a trust company, because it never gets too old to do the trust justice, it is sure to survive you, and it has no interest other than your intentions. Besides, the familiarity with judicial procedure and financial operations may save you money for your beneficiaries.

Where You Gain

When you make your will, in accord with the program for National Thrift Week, you will see just where your dependents will stand.

The inventory you will thus make will show you three great points:

How can you produce more and thus earn more.

How you can save more and thus have more.

How you can invest wisely and thus be sure of your savings.

National Thrift Week MAKE-A-WILL DAY

Wednesday is Make-A-Will Day. Don't pass up this important protection to your own.

Any day is a good day to invest your money where you know it is safe—in government securities.

These securities now fit every need for savings, from the 25 cent Thrift Stamp up through the Savings Stamp, face value $5, the $100 Treasury Savings Certificate, the $1000 Treasury Savings Certificate, the government's certificate of indebtedness, and government bonds. Ask your postman or your banker.
